DETAILED ACTIONClaim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

1. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Carson (6,254,247)
2. Carson discloses a novelty bottle (10) comprising an enclosed container formed of transparent material (24); a light source supported within the container; means within the container for supplying electrical power to the light source (44); switch (48) means located on the container for actuating the light source, (84) whereby upon activation of the switch means, the light source is lit within the container (52,60), simulating captured natural light enclosed within the container.
  - The light source is a light emitting diode (66).
  - Means for supplying electrical power comprises a battery pack located between the switch means and the light source (74).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 4-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Carson in further view of Chen (6,742,910).

5. Carson discloses the claimed invention except for the recitation of a screw-activated switch. Chen discloses a screw-activated switch in combination with a flashlight receptacle LED. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to implement a screw switch in the device of Carson as taught by Chen, for the purpose of facilitating activation of the illumination device by a simple twist.

- The switch means comprises a screw-activated switch (40,42,44, fig 4 Chen).
- Chen's switch means comprises a screw-activated switch and the means for supplying electrical power comprises a battery, whereby upon turning of the screw-activated switch, power flows from the battery pack to the light source.

6. Claims 6 and 7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Carson.

7. Carson discloses the claimed invention except for the recitation of a key chain secured to the container or a magnet attached to the container. With regards to the key chain, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to implement a key chain in the device of Carson, since such an implementation would facilitate a decorative novelty to a key chain, which is old and well known in the art. With regards to a magnet being attached to the container. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to implement a magnet in the decorative device of Carson for the purpose of displaying it on a metallic surface since such a practice is old and well known in the art.
